Landscape Award Ceremony 2016

Announcement of the 9th Rosa Barba International Landscape Prize Winner (by Fundació Banc Sabadell), of the International Landscape Architecture School Exhibition Winner (by Fundació Banc Sabadell) and of the winner of the Public Opinion Prize.

In the context of a new climate regime, personal or professional indifference is not an option. We will need to (UN) learn concepts, methods and attitudes. The Anthropocene leads us to redesign and rethink the management of territories of nature in arms. We have witness the emergence of professional practice proposals mitigating the effects of climate change (through project or planning), collective demands to rebuild with a new integrative design (rebuilt by design), global assessments of the resilience of cities (Un habitat) and demonstrations of citizens with a new concept of landscape as common good to safeguard with tactical projects (guerrilla gardening, tactic urbanism). Tomorrow Landscapes decidedly faces the future, talking about climate and social strategies, declined on the project (s) and process designs in landscape architecture.
